

CCAC May 14, 2019 MEETING NOTICE

Shaping a Central City Strategy for All

In December 2018, the CCAC convened a roundtable to brainstorm an agenda for a rapidly changing Central City which is seeing high rates of growth, a blurring of traditional boundaries, new ways of working, living and moving around, and a desire to see growth benefit all Chicago's communities.

The three committees established at that meeting have continued to explore and refine practical ideas for linking Central City and neighborhood economic development, new mobility to connect neighborhoods and the Central City, and private sector broadband availability and public-sector hubs in west side and south side communities. Each has explored new ideas for expanded opportunity, greater connectivity and more equitable and inclusive outcomes for all of Chicago.

This initiative has been facilitated by Skidmore, Owings & Merrill LLP (SOM) with contributions from many CCAC members.

An overview of the outcome of the initiative, and next steps will be presented by Christopher Hall, Urban Strategy, SOM
along with Central City Strategy Working Group Members at the May CCAC lunch.
